Revised forecasts (B)	183,000	17,000	6,000	500	(2.05)

2. Reasons for Revision of Business Forecasts

The market environment featured growing demand for tablet PC coupled with a continued slowdown in demand for personal computer. Coming into the August-October quarter, demand for smartphone, previously the leading driving force in the market, shifted from high-end products to low-end products.

Reflecting these changes in demand structure, foundries have adjusted their production volume.

However the volume adjustment was somewhat milder than our forecast, cost reduction exceeds our plan and yen is weaker than expected, thus net sales, operating income and ordinary income exceeds the previous forecasts.

(Note) Business forecasts and other forward-looking statements are based on assumptions that we consider to be reasonable based on information currently available to us, and our actual results may differ significantly from those projection in the forward-looking statement as a result of various factors.
