2. Reason

The Company considers the return of profits to shareholders to be an important goal for our management along with increasing medium- to long-term corporate value. To increase corporate value, the Company will make capital investments efficiently to further raise the sophistication of 5G, as well as continuing investments in new businesses such as building AI computing infrastructure. Our basic policy is to distribute surplus twice a year as interim and year-end dividends, and to pay attention to the stability and sustainability of dividends while considering factors such as performance trends, financial condition, and cash flow position on a comprehensive basis.

In the fiscal year ended March 31, 2025, the Company resolved to pay a year-end dividend per share of JPY 4.30 for common shares, JPY 50 for the Series 1 Bond-Type Class Shares, and JPY 126.24[*2] for the Series 2 Bond-Type Class Shares. For the fiscal year ending March 31, 2026, the annual dividend per share is planned to be JPY 8.60 (of which, the interim and year-end dividends per share are planned to be JPY 4.30 and JPY 4.30, respectively) for common shares, and a prescribed amount of dividend is planned for the Series 1 Bond-Type Class Shares and the Series 2 Bond-Type Class Shares.

(Note) 3. The Company conducted a stock split whereby each share of the Company's common shares was split into 10 shares, with the effective date being October 1, 2024. Regarding the abovementioned amount for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2025, the interim dividend per share is before the stock split while the year-end dividend per share takes the stock split into account. Total dividends per share is not stated because the amounts cannot be simply combined due to the implementation of the stock split. If the stock split were not conducted, the annual dividends per share would be JPY 86.
