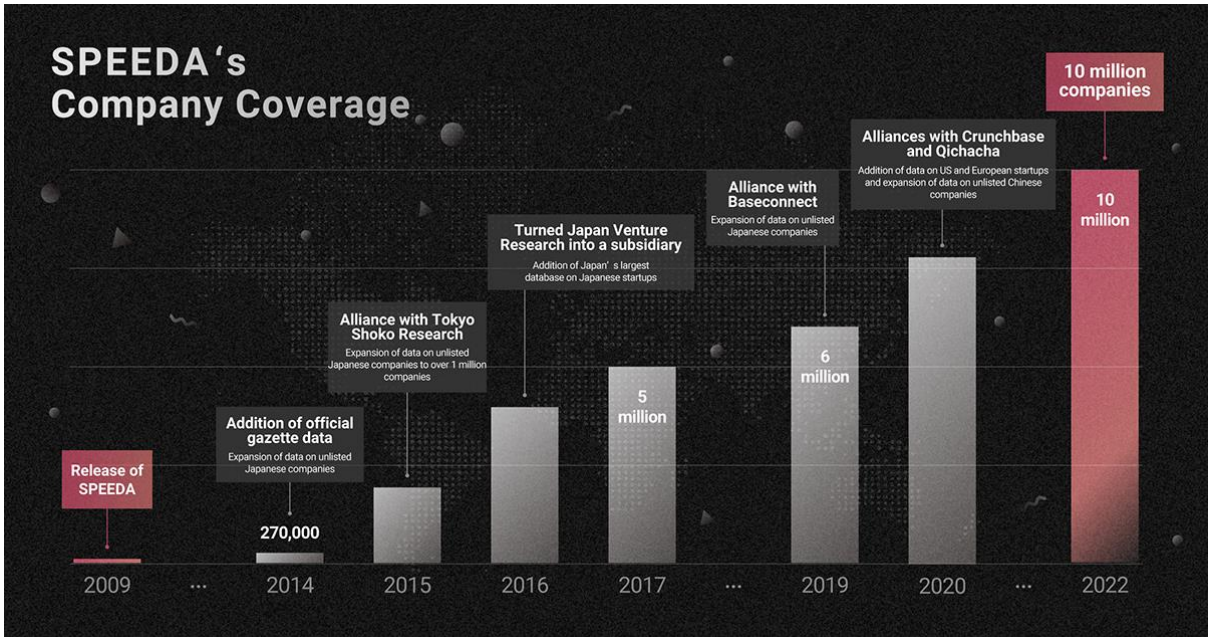
2022.2.9

SPEEDA, the business intelligence platform operated by Uzabase, Inc. (hereinafter “Uzabase”), announces that the number of companies on which it provides data has surpassed 10 million.

Since launching in 2009, SPEEDA has continually strived to enhance the business intelligence it provides to users through its core company and industry information. With this latest expansion, SPEEDA now offers one-stop access to data on over 10 million companies worldwide, enabling users to efficiently gather information for business alliances, M&As, and sales strategy planning.



Comment from Taira Sakuma, Co-CEO of Uzabase and CEO of SPEEDA

Uzabase's purpose is to "awaken a world of play in business, with our insights," and easy access to information on companies from around the world is an essential part of this process. The expansion of our coverage to 10 million companies helps us to create even greater value for the user, and brings us one step closer to fully achieving our purpose.
We thank our users and partner companies for their continued support.

Comment from Yusuke Inagaki, Co-CEO of Uzabase and Co-Founder

When Uzabase was founded, SPEEDA was our first product. I led development as CTO at the time, and we were able to successfully launch the product in 2009. While SPEEDA began as a small-scale platform that only covered data on listed companies in Japan, it has now grown to cover over 10 million companies from across the world and is trusted by users from over 1,700 companies in 16 countries.
This achievement is thanks to the continued support of our partners, including our data suppliers, who believed and invested in us when we were still small and relatively unknown. We are truly grateful to everyone who has supported us on this journey.
We will strive to further contribute to the creation of business value for our users, utilizing the latest technology and creating new synergies with other businesses, and continue to grow as a global service.
