Notice regarding an Additional 10 Launches with Rocket Lab to Deploy StriX SAR Constellation

We are pleased to announce an expansion of its partnership with Rocket Lab, securing its second multi-launch agreement for 10 additional dedicated Electron launches (Rocket Lab's launch vehicle).

With this contract, our launch contracts total 24 vehicles, including 21 with Rocket Lab and 3 with SpaceX. Additionally, we have contracts for 9 vehicles with Exolaunch, which handles launch mission management. We will continue to update the latest launch-related information in press releases and financial results materials as appropriate.

（Future Outlook）

In recent years, as global demand for satellite launches has surged, few launch providers can offer the flexibility to accommodate desired launch windows and orbits. Securing launch opportunities is essential for us to steadily develop our planned SAR satellite constellation and carry out our missions as scheduled.

This announcement is about an agreement concerning future satellite launches. There will be no impact on our earnings forecast for the fiscal year ending December 31, 2025, which was disclosed on February 14, 2025.

We will continue to update the latest launch-related information in press releases and financial results materials as appropriate.
