Selected for the FY2025 SME and SDGs Business Support Program (JICA Biz)

TOYOKOH Inc. (Headquarters: Fuji City, Shizuoka Prefecture; President & CEO: Kazuaki Toyosawa; hereinafter "the Company"), which develops infrastructure maintenance technologies for aging bridges and other structures, hereby announces that it has been selected by the Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA) for the FY2025 SME and SDGs Business Support Program (JICA Biz).

About JICA Biz

JICA Biz is a program through which JICA supports Japanese private companies and other organizations in developing business initiatives that address challenges in developing countries. In this round, the Company's project titled "Needs Assessment for Infrastructure Maintenance Using 'CoolLaser,' a Laser-Based Device for Removing Rust and Coatings" has been selected for implementation in the Republic of the Philippines (the "Host Country"). Based on fundamental information about the Host Country, the program will analyze local customer needs and the compatibility of the Company's products. With financial support from JICA for survey-related expenses, activities such as assessing market size, identifying potential customers, and distribution channels will be conducted.

Benefits of being a part of JICA Biz

1. JICA's Credibility and Network

Through Official Development Assistance (ODA), JICA has established extensive networks and long-standing relationships of trust with governments in developing countries. This enables access to local partners, government agencies, municipalities, and organizations that would be difficult for private companies to reach independently. As the Company works toward the social implementation of "laser-based construction," a new initiative both domestically and internationally, we expect that the search for business partners and the establishment of distribution channels in the Host Country will be accelerated.

2. Hands-On Support by Consultants

The Company will be able to receive business development advice and on-site survey support from consultants with experience in supporting business development in developing countries. Advice from local marketing specialists, as well as experts in product regulations and certification standards, will be available, accelerating research and analysis of the industry structure, market scale, regulatory environment, and competitive landscape for the Company's products in the Host Country.

3. Enhanced Corporate Recognition

By disseminating outcomes through JICA's various public relations channels, websites, and social media platforms, increased recognition of the Company's products both domestically and internationally is expected. The business developments and development impacts generated as a result of the survey will be shared by JICA in Japan and overseas, contributing to the expansion of partnerships and enhanced corporate visibility.
