1. Review of operating results and others

(1) Review of operating results for the first nine months

(i) Condition of Japanese economy

In the first nine months, the Japanese economy showed a gradually recovery trend in economic conditions, backed mainly by improvement in the employment and income environment. However, the future of the economy remains unclear due to surging resource prices caused by the war in Ukraine and conflicts in the Middle East, primarily in Gaza, becoming prolonged, an increase in prices, the Japanese yen depreciation in foreign exchange markets and other factors.

Furthermore, in the securities markets of Japan, to which the business of the Company is closely linked, although the Nikkei Stock Average fell to the 31,000-yen level at one point in the first nine months due to concerns about the slowing of the U.S. economy and the rapid appreciation of the yen, expectations for a domestic economic recovery resulted in it trading mostly around the 38,000-yen level, compared to the 32,000-yen level in the same period of the previous fiscal year.

(ii) Review of performance

In the first nine months of the current fiscal year, orders for web services, English translation services and other IR-related services increased against the backdrop of the growing need for the promotion of dialogue with shareholders and investors and the requirement for companies listed on the Prime Market to simultaneously disclose timely disclosure information, etc. in Japanese and English starting in April 2025. In addition, orders increased for finance-related products for listed companies and, in the investment trust-related business, for promotion tools, mainly for sales company websites. The business of preparing the shareholder convocation notices, one of our mainstay products, saw the number of their printed pages decrease due to the system for the electronic provision of convocation notices that was implemented starting from the general meetings of shareholders held in March 2023. However, sales were almost at the same level year on year, as the shift to electronic provision has been more gradual than expected, as well as due to an increase in the number of printed copies, accompanying the increase in the number of individual shareholders, and the provision of services aimed at supporting electronic provision.

In addition, starting from the first nine months of the current fiscal year, the accounting for the annual fees for the practical information provision services for our client companies was changed from recording a lump sum at the beginning of the fiscal year previously to recording monthly installments. Although there will be no impact on the performance for the full year as a result of this change, both revenue and profit for these services for the first nine months decreased by 31 million yen. The aforementioned factors contributing to increased revenue more than offset these. As a result, consolidated revenue in the first nine months was 24,590 million yen, an increase of 599 million yen, or 2.5%, year on year.

In terms of profit, due in part to efforts to offset initial costs incurred to address the system for electronic provision of shareholder convocation notices and a decrease in sales promotion expenses, operating profit came to 3,261 million yen, an increase of 317 million yen, or 10.8%, year on year. In addition, as a result of recording gain on sale of investments accounted for using equity method of 1,411 million yen in conjunction with the share transfer of associates accounted for using equity method, profit before tax was 4,715 million yen, an increase of 1,698 million yen, or 56.3%, year on year, and profit attributable to owners of parent was 3,206 million yen, an increase of 1,114 million yen, or 53.3%, year on year.

1) Sales performance by business

<Listed companies disclosure-related business>

In conjunction with the expanding adoption of the system for the electronic provision of convocation notices that was implemented starting from the general meetings of shareholders held in March 2023, the number of printed pages for shareholder convocation notices, one of our mainstay products, decreased. However, as the shift to electronic provision has been more gradual than expected, as well as due to an increase in the number of printed copies, accompanying the increase in the number of individual shareholders, and the promotion of orders for new services in response to the introduction of the new system, the negative impact has been negligible and the results exceeded our plan at the beginning of the fiscal year.

In addition, orders increased for finance-related products against the backdrop of robust stock markets, and revenues increased for outsourcing services for the preparation of disclosure documents due to strong demands for operational streamlining. As a result, revenue of the listed companies disclosure-related business was 10,098 million yen, an increase of 239 million yen, or 2.4%, year on year.

<Listed companies IR and events-related, etc. business>

Orders increased for web services and support services for preparing tools for non-financial information, backed by growing needs and societal demands for the promotion of dialogue with shareholders and investors. Furthermore, revenues increased for English translation services in anticipation of the requirement for companies listed on the Prime Market to simultaneously disclose information in Japanese and English starting in April 2025.

However, revenue from business reports for shareholders decreased as the number of companies preparing such reports has declined. In addition, starting from the first nine months of the current fiscal year, the accounting for the annual fees for the practical information provision services for our client companies was changed from recording a lump sum at the beginning of the fiscal year previously to recording monthly installments. Although there will be no impact on the performance for the full year as a result of this change, the sales for these services for the first nine months decreased by 31 million yen. As a result, revenue of the listed companies IR and events-related, etc. business was 8,563 million yen, an increase of 240 million yen, or 2.9%, year on year.

<Financial instruments disclosure-related business>

In the investment trust-related business, orders increased for promotion tools, mainly for sales company websites, against the backdrop of the increase in the number of individual investors following the introduction of the new NISA (Nippon Individual Savings Account) scheme. In the meantime, in the real estate securities business, despite a decline in orders for related products due to a decrease in financing compared to the same period of the previous fiscal year, factors contributing to increased revenue more than offset these. As a result, revenue of the financial instruments disclosure-related business was 5,154 million yen, an increase of 116 million yen, or 2.3%, year on year.

<Database-related business>

In the database-related business, although there were some decreases in unit prices during contract renewals for existing customers, we worked to increase unit prices mainly from universities, who are the main customers, and acquire orders from new customers. As a result, revenue of the database-related business was 775 million yen, an increase of 5 million yen, or 0.6%, year on year.

2) Earnings summary

In the first nine months, revenue increased by 599 million yen year on year, with revenue in all product areas exceeding the same period of the previous fiscal year. Cost of sales amounted to 15,182 million yen, an increase of 385 million yen, or 2.6%, year on year, despite a decrease in costs for paper as a result of the expanding adoption of the system for the electronic provision of shareholder convocation notices. Factors causing this cost increase included continued rises in unit purchase prices, such as the cost of materials, including paper, and increases in labor costs and outsourcing expenses caused by the expansion of orders. The cost-to-sales ratio was 61.7%, remaining at the same level year on year, as a result of efforts to offset initial costs incurred to address the aforementioned system for electronic provision, and to implement operational streamlining. As a result, gross profit was 9,408 million yen, an increase of 214 million yen, or 2.3%, year on year. Selling, general and administrative expenses amounted to 6,229 million yen, a decrease of 76 million yen, or 1.2%, year on year mainly due to a decrease in sales promotion expenses. The ratio of selling, general and administrative expenses was 25.3%, a decrease of 1.0 percentage points year on year. As a result, operating profit was 3,261 million yen, an increase of 317 million yen, or 10.8%, year on year.

In addition, as a result of recording finance income of 69 million yen, finance costs of 26 million yen, and gain on sale of investments accounted for using equity method of 1,411 million yen in conjunction with the share transfer of associates accounted for using equity method, profit before tax was 4,715 million yen, an increase of 1,698 million yen, or 56.3%, year on year. As a result, profit attributable to owners of parent was 3,206 million yen, an increase of 1,114 million yen, or 53.3%, year on year.

In conjunction with the finalization of the provisional accounting treatment for business combinations, the figures for the first nine months of the fiscal year ended March 31, 2024 reflect the finalization of the provisional accounting treatment.

(iii) Seasonal factors of the third quarter

The Company and its subsidiaries (the “Group”) owe approximately two-thirds of its revenue to Japanese listed companies. Because roughly 60% of these companies close their books in March, orders for products related to account settlements and shareholders’ meetings peak in the first quarter (from April to June). Consequently, as shown in the table below, revenue during the first quarter accounts for approximately 40% of the year total, while that during the third quarter (from October to December) is limited to around 20%.

(Reference) Fiscal year ended March 31, 2024

	Q1 (Apr.–Jun.)	Q2 (Jul.–Sep.)	Q3 (Oct.–Dec.)	Q4 (Jan.–Mar.)	Year total
Revenue (Millions of yen)	11,800	5,916	6,275	6,126	30,117
Composition ratio (%)	39.2	19.7	20.8	20.3	100.0

(2) Explanation of financial position

As of December 31, 2024, total assets increased by 1,480 million yen from the previous fiscal year-end to 40,064 million yen. The main components included an increase of 3,589 million yen in cash and cash equivalents, a decrease of 345 million yen in right-of-use assets, a decrease of 974 million yen in investments accounted for using equity method, and a decrease of 417 million yen in other financial assets (non-current assets).

As of December 31, 2024, total liabilities decreased by 344 million yen from the previous fiscal year-end to 12,657 million yen. The main components included a decrease of 526 million yen in trade and other payables, and an increase of 432 million yen in contract liabilities.

Equity totaled 27,407 million yen as of December 31, 2024, an increase of 1,824 million yen from the previous fiscal year-end. The main components included an increase due to the recording of 3,206 million yen in profit attributable to owners of parent, a decrease due to the recording of a loss of 264 million yen in other comprehensive income, and a decrease due to dividends of surplus of 1,122 million yen. As a result, the ratio of equity attributable to owners of parent to total assets became 68.3%.

(4) Notes to condensed quarterly consolidated financial statements

(Changes in accounting policies)

The Group has adopted the following standards from the beginning of the first quarter of the fiscal year ending March 31, 2025. The adoption of the following standards does not have a material impact on the condensed quarterly consolidated financial statements.

IFRS		Description of New Standards/Amendments
IAS 1	Presentation of Financial Statements	Amended to clarify the requirements for classifying debt and other financial liabilities as current or non-current
IFRS 16	Leases	Amended to clarify the accounting treatment of a sale-and-leaseback transaction after the date of the transaction

(Segment information)

The reportable segments of the Group are components of the Company for which discrete financial information is available and regularly reviewed by the Board of Directors to make decisions about allocation of managerial resources and to assess their performance.

The Group's business consists of the production of disclosure and IR-related products and incidental business operations. As such, the Group has a single business segment, the disclosure-related business, since there are no separable operating segments.
