1. Qualitative information on semi-annual consolidated financial results

(1) Explanation of operating results

During the six months ended September 30, 2026, the global economy faced ongoing concerns about stagnation in production activities due to rising crude oil prices and instability in the procurement of petroleum-derived materials.

Under these circumstances, in the United States, manufacturing production remained active on the back of strong AI demand, and corporate capital investment remained strong. On the other hand, in Europe, the downturn in manufacturing continued mainly due to persistently high energy costs and stagnation in the automotive industry. In China, although exports were strong, domestic demand remained stagnant, resulting in a limited recovery in capital investment.

In Japan, although the business sentiment in the petrochemical industry deteriorated due to the turmoil in the Middle East, the manufacturing sector's sentiment improved, supported by increased investments in semiconductor industry-related areas.

In our Group's business results for the six months ended September 30, 2026, amidst stable demand for measures against aging social infrastructure and maintenance related to plants, sales of pressure gauges to the semiconductor industry increased, and in conjunction with this, sales to the pneumatic equipment industry also increased.

While sales of pressure sensors for the air-conditioning & piping materials industry and the industrial machinery industry increased, there was a significant increase in sales to the semiconductor industry, due to the strong demand for factory auxiliary equipment and data center construction.

The U.S. subsidiary saw strong performance for the industrial machinery industry, the semiconductor industry, and the construction machinery industry, resulting in increased sales of pressure gauges and a significant increase in sales of pressure sensors.

Sales of the measurement & control equipment increased, particularly for air leakage testers used in the automotive and electronic components related industries, as well as pneumatic equipment for automation facilities, due to a certain recovery in capital investment in the automotive industry, which had been sluggish in the same period of the previous fiscal year. Sales of die-cast products for the automobile industry increased.

These factors resulted in net sales of ¥37,215 million (up 14.9% year on year). As for profits, operating profit was ¥4,717 million (up 45.1% year on year) and ordinary profit was ¥4,791 million (up 51.2% year on year) mainly due to the recording of share of profit of entities accounted for using equity method. Profit attributable to owners of parent was ¥3,378 million (up 50.6% year on year), mainly due to the recording of income taxes - current.

Operating results by segment are as follows:

[Pressure gauge business]

In the pressure gauge business, in Japan, there was an increase in demand for maintenance for the process industry, and sales to the industrial machinery industry, the FA pneumatic equipment industry and the semiconductor industry increased. At the U.S. subsidiary, sales to the industrial machinery industry increased. As a result, net sales for the pressure gauge business were ¥19,683 million (up 14.6% year on year), and operating profit for the business was ¥1,944 million (up 23.4% year on year).

[Pressure sensor business]

In the pressure sensor business, although sales for automobile pressure sensors decreased in Europe, sales increased in Japan for the process and new energy applications, air-conditioning & piping materials, and construction machinery sensors. Furthermore, against the backdrop of a global boom in semiconductor-related investments, sales to the semiconductor industry increased significantly. At the U.S. subsidiary, sales increased due to strong performance in the industrial machinery industry. As a result, net sales for the pressure sensor business were ¥11,633 million (up 19.2% year on year), and operating profit for the business was ¥2,422 million (up 69.5% year on year).

[Measurement & control equipment business]

In the measurement & control equipment business, sales of air leakage testers used in the automotive and electronic components related industries increased, and sales of pneumatic equipment increased. As a result, net sales for the measurement & control equipment business were ¥2,115 million (up 15.3% year on year), and operating profit for the business was ¥237 million (up 189.3% year on year).

[Die-cast business]

In the die-cast business, with the automotive industry as a major customer, there was an increase in sales of die-cast products, on the back of a recovery in automobile production, net sales for the die-cast business were ¥2,885 million (up 7.8% year on year), however, the operating profit for the business remained at ¥54 million (down 46.2% year on year) due to the impact of soaring material prices and other factors resulting from the worsening situation in the Middle East.

[Other businesses]

In other businesses, as a result of the sale of the shopping town business (tenant building) in June 2025, store rental income decreased. Additionally, sales of automotive electrical components decreased due to stagnant exports. As a result, net sales for other businesses were ¥896 million (down 5.8% year on year), and operating profit for the business was ¥56 million (down 5.9% year on year).

(2) Explanation of financial position

Total assets as of September 30, 2026 increased by ¥6,928 million from the end of the previous fiscal year to ¥83,404 million. The main factors were attributable to increases in electronically recorded monetary claims - operating, notes and accounts receivable - trade, and contract assets, and investment securities due to an increase in their market value.

Liabilities increased by ¥2,683 million from the end of the previous fiscal year to ¥30,051 million. The main factors were attributable to increases in notes and accounts payable - trade, and deferred tax liabilities.

Net assets increased by ¥4,245 million from the end of the previous fiscal year to ¥53,352 million. The main factors were attributable to an increase of ¥2,892 million in retained earnings, mainly due to increased profits, and an increase of ¥1,046 million in valuation difference on available-for-sale securities.

As a result, the equity-to-asset ratio was 63.3%, up 0.4 percentage points from the end of the previous fiscal year.

[Status of cash flows]

Cash and cash equivalents (hereafter referred to as “cash”) in the six months ended September 30, 2026 were ¥12,355 million, a decrease of ¥1,129 million from the end of the previous fiscal year.

The status of each cash flow and their contributing factors are as follows.

(Cash flows from operating activities)

Net cash provided by operating activities was ¥857 million (¥3,232 million provided in the same period of the previous fiscal year).

The increase in cash was mainly due to the recording of profit before income taxes of ¥5,062 million, while the decrease in cash was mainly due to an increase in trade receivables of ¥4,817 million.

(Cash flows from investing activities)

Net cash used in investing activities was ¥493 million (¥190 million used in the same period of the previous fiscal year).

The decrease in cash was mainly due to payments into time deposits of ¥595 million.

(Cash flows from financing activities)

Net cash used in financing activities was ¥1,624 million (¥1,173 million used in the same period of the previous fiscal year).

The decrease in cash was mainly due to ¥508 million in repayments of long-term borrowings, ¥488 million in dividends paid, and ¥319 million in repayments of lease liabilities.

(3) Explanation of earnings forecasts of consolidated financial results and other forward-looking statements

Regarding the earnings forecasts of consolidated financial results, there are no changes to the earnings forecasts in the “Notice of Revision to Earnings Forecast” announced on October 23, 2026.

As the outlook for the economic environment remains uncertain, actual results may differ due to various factors.
