Comment

"I am Kotomi Mihara, and I have recently been appointed as a Board Director.

Since the launch of the note service, I have worked closely with creators to support their activities through planning and communication.

Creative work is not only a form of personal expression but also a force that moves society and culture forward. Through my involvement with countless creative projects on note, I have seen the immense value and potential of these activities.

I intend to apply the knowledge of creator support and community building that I have gained on the ground to the core of our management. By enhancing the systems that support creation and ensuring an environment where everyone can focus on their message with peace of mind, I aim to build a company that is both trusted and needed by creators and society.

Our team will work together to contribute to the further growth of note and the development of creative culture."
