Notice Regarding Application for Transfer to the Standard Market of the Tokyo Stock Exchange

We hereby announce that today we submitted an application for a change in market classification to the Standard Market of the Tokyo Stock Exchange.

As of January 31, 2026, the Company was not able to maintain the continued listing criteria of the Prime Market concerning market capitalization of tradable shares. Accordingly, on April 10, 2026, we formulated and disclosed a plan to achieve compliance with the listing maintenance standards. The primary reason for the decline in market capitalization of tradable shares has been the deterioration of our business performance resulting from sluggish consolidated sales attributable to weak demand for electric vehicle (EV) applications. Therefore, with the objective of satisfying the Prime Market listing maintenance criteria within the improvement period ending January 31, 2027, the Company adopted a basic policy of restoring business performance by increasing sales through diversification of product applications and customer bases beyond EV-related applications, while simultaneously working to improve the market capitalization of tradable shares.

As specific measures under this initiative, in the lithium-ion battery separator business, we have expanded our sales focus beyond EV applications to include applications mainly for AI data centers, grid power infrastructure (power grid modernization), and renewable energy storage systems. In the ion-exchange membrane business, we have broadened sales for applications including industrial wastewater treatment, acid recovery from acid-pickling waste liquids, production of purified and ultrapure water, desalination treatment, and salinity gradient power generation. Through these efforts, we are progressing toward reducing our dependence on a single customer. These initiatives will be launched sequentially from the fiscal year ending January 2027 (the current fiscal year), and product applications and sales destinations will gradually increase. However, due to the continued slump in EV demand, our performance recovery remains in progress. Consequently, we expect that the Prime Market listing maintenance criterion of "market capitalization of tradable shares of at least ¥10 billion" will continue to remain unmet during the current fiscal year.

After comprehensively considering these circumstances, the Company has determined that achieving compliance with the above criterion during the fiscal year ending January 2027 will be difficult. Accordingly, in order to maintain its stock exchange listing status, the Company has applied for a change in market classification to the Standard Market.

Should any matters requiring disclosure arise in relation to this matter in the future, the Company will promptly make the necessary announcement.
