1. Overview of operating results and others

Forward-looking statements presented in this report reflect judgments made as of the end of the current accounting period and accordingly are not guarantees of future performance.

(1) Overview of operating results for the period

During the six months ended September 30, 2026, the Japanese economy followed a moderate recovery trend, supported by improving employment conditions and sustained demand from inbound travelers. However, the domestic economy was affected by unseasonable weather, with personal consumption remaining sluggish. In addition, the outlook remains uncertain as various geopolitical risks continue to rise, including the deterioration of relations between Japan and China and increasing tensions in the Middle East.

In this business environment, the Group entered the second year of the Medium-Term Management Plan 2027, which will conclude in the fiscal year ending March 31, 2028. Under the basic policy of "maximizing employee happiness and corporate value through growth investments and infrastructure investments in people, technology, and ICT," we view "people" as the source of value creation and are steadily advancing proactive investment in, and strategic development of, human resources. Building on these efforts, during the six months ended September 30, 2026, we have continued to respond to the changes in the business environment described above. First, in the airport-related business, the reduction of flights on China routes, resulting from the deterioration in Japan-China relations, became apparent from December 2025 and is expected to continue affecting the business throughout the fiscal year ending March 31, 2027; nevertheless, we are striving to secure earnings by acquiring new ancillary business and optimizing the utilization of personnel. In addition, although the increase in transportation costs resulting from higher fuel prices amid heightened tensions in the Middle East has had a limited impact, we will continue to closely monitor developments.

With respect to financial results for the six months ended September 30, 2026, net sales decreased to ¥178,641 million (0.4% decrease year on year), although we continued to pursue the business strategies of "expanding overseas business" and "strengthen businesses in Japan" under the Medium-Term Management Plan 2027, which commenced in April 2025. While certain factors—including increased handling volume and the receipt of appropriate unit prices in the food products-related business and life-related business—contributed to revenue, these positive factors were outweighed by decreases in handling volume, including lower air cargo handling volume in the international-related business and lower volume due to the reduction of international passenger flights in the airport-related business.

In terms of profits, although we continued to pursue the business strategies under the Medium-Term Management Plan 2027, operating profit was ¥11,470 million (8.9% decrease year on year) and ordinary profit was ¥11,212 million (10.7% decrease year on year). In addition, profit attributable to owners of parent was ¥6,810 million (16.2% decrease year on year), due to an increase in tax expenses.

Financial results by segment are as follows. Note that segment profit represents operating profit before deducting general and administrative expenses.

(i) Integrated Solutions Business

Net sales increased 2.1% year on year to ¥119,055 million due to increased handling volume in the food products-related business and the life-related business, as well as progress in securing appropriate pricing across the business, despite reductions in international passenger flights in the airport-related business and the suspension of operations at certain affiliated companies in the steel-related business.

Profit decreased 3.8% year on year to ¥12,110 million due to the impact of lower revenue in the airport-related business and higher personnel expenses associated with investments in human resources, among other factors, despite continued efforts to secure appropriate pricing.

(ii) Domestic Logistics Business

Despite the termination of certain customers' operations in the life-related business, net sales increased 0.6% year on year to ¥28,278 million due to increases in product storage volume and in handling volume of frozen and refrigerated cargo.

Profit decreased 15.2% year on year to ¥1,607 million, because the positive effect of increased revenue was insufficient to offset the impact of the termination of certain customers' operations and other factors.

(iii) International Logistics Business

Despite revenue-increasing factors, including orders for import construction projects involving large-scale equipment and increased handling volume in ASEAN and India, net sales decreased 9.6% year on year to ¥31,287 million due to a decline in air cargo handling volume associated with structural reforms at a forwarding subsidiary in Hong Kong.

Profit rose 19.4% year on year to ¥2,515 million due to the effect of increased revenue from import construction projects involving large-scale equipment and improved profitability associated with structural reforms at a forwarding subsidiary in Hong Kong, among other factors, despite deteriorating earnings in the automotive parts packaging business in North and Central America and higher fuel costs for the Group's own vessels.

With the increase of ¥167 million due to exchange fluctuations taken into account in addition to the above results, cash and cash equivalents as of September 30, 2026 decreased by ¥4,843 million to ¥56,094 million compared to the amount as of March 31, 2026.

Considering annual financial results, the Company's financial strength, medium- to long-term business strategies, and other relevant factors, the Company's basic policy is to provide dividends in a consistent and stable manner, based on its financial performance and earnings conditions, while also enhancing internal reserves.
